Update Regarding System Disruption Caused by Unauthorized Third-Party Access

On September 28, 2026, the Company announced an incident involving unauthorized access to certain English-language websites operated by the Company in the “Notice Regarding System Disruption Caused by Unauthorized Third-Party Access.”

Following inquiries concerning this matter, the Company hereby provides the following supplementary information regarding the websites subject to the unauthorized access and the scope of impact confirmed as of this date.

Details

The websites subject to the unauthorized access in this incident were certain English-language websites intended for overseas users, including those of overseas subsidiaries, that were operated on a rental server provided by an external service provider. These websites were operated in an environment separate from the servers used to manage and operate the Company’s core systems, internal network, and domestic websites, including its corporate website.

[Affected Websites]

- Building Materials Products Special Website (English): fukuvikenzai.com
- Websites of Overseas Consolidated Subsidiaries (FUKUVI VIETNAM • FUKUVI THAILAND)
: ftc.fukuvi-jp.com, fvc.fukuvi-jp.com
- Fandaline Website (English): fandaline.fukuvi-jp.com

As of this date, no impact from this incident has been identified on the Company’s core systems, internal network, or servers managed and operated by the Company.

The Company will continue to investigate this incident and will promptly disclose any additional matters that should be disclosed as they become known.

The Company sincerely apologizes for the concern caused to its shareholders and investors, customers, business partners, and other stakeholders.
